

 SPACECRAFT PRESS O50

Using the OpenSource web app “Cryptii” made by @ffraenz, Richard Baskin translates the only snippet of computer code described in Stanislaw Lem’s seminal science fiction novel His Master’s Voice, into several other machine dialects, perhaps revealing a clue to the meaning (or lack thereof) embedded in the opening line of the message obsessed over by the scientists of Lem’s novel.

30 copies launched
May, 2017

Spacecraft Press
10 Varmoor Place
Calgary, AB, T3A 0A1

OPENING LINES

FOR STANISLAW LEM

- RICHARD BASKIN -